7. In scientific communities around the world there is an ongoing debate about climate change. Some argue that the fluorocarbons that are being emitted in the atmosphere are creating a greenhouse effect that is resulting in global warming. They point to the extreme weather events that we are seeing around the world such as droughts, unusually high snow falls, deadly tornadoes, devastating tsunamis and multiple hurricanes as evidence of global warming. They then argue the public policy should be directed toward reduction of the use of fossil fuels in the energy norms of countries around the world. Others argue that the small increase in climate temperature is a part of the natural cycle that the earth sees and to reduce the use of fossil fuels would negatively impact the world economy. Using this debate, answer the following questions.
- a. What responsibility, if any, does the Christian have in maintaining the environment? Please support your conclusion with scripture.
 - b. As we see major snow storms in the mid-western and east coast of the United States and hurricanes like Katrina that devastated New Orleans, we pray that lives will not be lost. Are we more responsible for praying for the calming of the bad weather or are we more responsible for working on climate change policy? Please elaborate.
8. There was a time in the Church of God In Christ when the testimony formula was "I am saved, sanctified and filled with the Holy Ghost." The second work of grace identified with this formula, sanctification, seems to have less currency in the Christian experience than it had previously. Please discuss sanctification as a work of grace and as a Christian movement and discuss whether it is important to be sanctified, today.
